Easter Traditions Are Back

Peter Cottontail will certainly be busy around Kirby Pines once again. The early timing of Easter this year will not stop him from ensuring that spring flowers are in bloom throughout the community.

Our "Annual" Easter Egg Hunt is back! After a two-year rest this year's egg hunt should be filled with the laughter and excitement of grandchildren, great grandchildren and even a few great, great grandchildren as they collect the hidden treasures Peter has left for them. Hopefully, you have helped him along the way by dyeing a few Easter eggs yourself.

Not to be out done by the Easter Bunny, our culinary team is planning a wonderful Easter Brunch. Of course, your family and friends are welcomed to join you. Simply call Skye Sanders to make a reservation. I am sure they'll enjoy the food and company. Who knows, Peter Cottontail may even leave a hidden surprise to remind your guests of how

at Kirby Pines

special Kirby Pines truly is to everyone.

April brings to us not only the rebirth of Christ, but also the opportunity to remind ourselves how fortunate we are, as we read and learn of so many countries struggling at this time. So invite your families and friends to come visit and see for themselves why Kirby Pines is such a beautiful place to live.

Happy Easter!

ON THE PINECONE COVER

Spring Is In Full Swing at Kirby Pines!

April is here and there is a lot going on at Kirby Pines this month, so let's get right to it.

On the 1st we have our popular Art Wall Reception, featuring resident artwork of all kinds. The 6th, the Travelers head to Calvary Episcopal for Lenten Lunch. The 7th is our Annual Spring Rummage Sale, so clean out those closets. We take a couple trips to The Orpheum to see The Band's Visit on the 14th and Mean Girls on the 28th. The 16th we are having our Annual Easter Egg Hunt, so make sure you invite the grandkids. The 20th, the Travelers head to The Planetarium. On Earth Day, the 22nd, we are having a Cornhole Tournament (see page 8). Lunch Bunch hits Coastal Fish Company on the 26th and the Poetry Group has a program on the 29th. If that isn't enough for you, there are several musicians and dances as well. Spring Fever is here.

Our front cover features Sally Cook, testing out her cornhole skills for our upcoming tournament. Cornhole is similar to horseshoes, but with beanbags and boards. It is a lot of fun and a great way to get outside and get competitive.

For our back cover, we asked residents to color sunflowers, the national flower of Ukraine, to show our support for their people. Everyone did such an amazing job. If you have not seen them, they are posted in the windows of the Library and are on our Facebook page.

Enjoy the beauty of spring!

Get to know Kirby Pines'

NEW RESIDENTS

Linda Case

We are elated to welcome Linda Case to Kirby Pines Retirement Community. This friendly and outgoing lady is looking forward to making new friends and getting involved in our lifestyle here at Kirby.

Linda moved to Kirby from her previous home in the Cordova area of Memphis. She is the proud mother of 2 children and the grandmother to her granddaughter Grace.

After attending college for 2 years, Linda became a mortgage specialist with Evolve Bank and Trust. While working in banking she honed her customer service and people skills.

It was only natural for Linda to become a traveler. Her father was with Boeing Aircraft and he took his family on semi-annual trips throughout the United States. A memorable trip for Linda is the one she took to Hawaii for her high school reunion. She also has fond memories of visiting her grandparents in Murphy, North Carolina.

Linda's varied interests include: collecting and listening to old vinyl records (especially country and John Denver), following NASCAR Racing (mainly Rusty Wallace), watching Hallmark movies and cooking oysters (Rockefeller and Bienville).

When you meet Linda, you'll find her friendly, fun loving and anxious to meet new people. Extend to her a warm Kirby welcome, she is a good fit for our community.

Freda & Phil Clements

Married for 67 years, Phil and Freda have moved to Kirby Pines from their home in Rossville, Tennessee. They are the proud parents of 7 children, grandparents to 26 grandchildren and soon to be 27 great-grandchildren.

Phil went to Trinity College and John Brown University. He earned his degree in Christian Education and pastored several churches for over 40 years. Most recently, he was associate pastor of Central Church in Memphis for 22 years. Freda received her degree in Biblical Education from Trinity College and was a Pastor's wife and homemaker.

Their visit to Israel is their favorite destination. Their traveling has also included trips to Guatemala, Kenya, Alaska, Hawaii, Canada, Egypt, England, France, Germany and Egypt. They have many experiences to share about these trips.

Kentucky Colonel and Man of the Year are 2 titles bestowed on Phil while living in Kentucky. Freda won a senior citizen spelling award and she placed in the Mid-south Talent competition. To stay active and avoid getting bored; Phil has collected coins, license plates, stamps and antiques while Freda collected postcards. With the move, collecting has slowed down and they are enjoying Sudoku, Scrabble, and crossword puzzles.

This is a couple you surely will want to seek out and welcome. They are warm, friendly, and will fascinate you with stories of their life adventures. We are very happy to have them as neighbors!

Carol Scarberry

Carol Scarberry is one of our newest residents at Kirby Pines, moving from Snow Lake Shores, Mississippi. She and Floyd, her late husband of 38 years, had a son, John.

After attending the University of Memphis and majoring in business and accounting, Carol went into the hair styling business. She owned and operated Carolyn's Hairstyling for 30 years. Later she was a stylist at Gould's Styling and Spa for 10 years. She also served on the Tennessee Hair Fashion Committee.

Carol and Floyd enjoyed traveling throughout most of the United States including Hawaii. They took a cruise to the Caribbean Islands.

Carol should find new friends here at Kirby who share similar interests. She enjoys reading and studying about history. To stay active, she walks. Like so many of our residents she will enjoy walking our beautiful campus this spring. Staying involved with her church activities will keep Carol busy.

When you meet Carol, give her a warm Kirby welcome and invite her to participate in our activities listed in The Pinecone. We are so glad Carol chose Kirby Pines for her new home.

WORKING OUT THROUGH PAIN.

Learn when to keep moving through exercise pain and when to stop.

By Camille Noe Pagán

Exercise is crucial if you have arthritis. But knowing just how much activity to do when you're hurting can be tricky. Research shows that moderate activity can help prevent the progression of arthritis and improve overall function. But while mild muscle soreness after a workout is normal, sharp pain during or immediately after can signal injury. And sometimes simply the fear of pain can keep you from wanting to do any kind of exercise. Here's how to determine when it's OK to work through exercise pain – and when it's not.

If you have mild to moderate pain in a specific joint area before you work out: Some mild pain is typical when you first start to move, but after a few minutes you'll usually start to feel better, says A. Lynn Millar, PhD, a professor of physical therapy at Winston Salem State University. "Our joints and muscles get nutrition through movement," she explains. "With some movement, you'll improve the lubrication and circulation around that joint." Start with some gentle range of motion movements and if that feels OK, progress to some low-impact activity like walking.

If you have moderate to severe pain in a specific joint area before you work out: Focus on a different area for a day or two. If your knees hurt, decrease the intensity. If the pain becomes worse, then stop the lower body moves and work your upper body instead. "Continuing to put pressure on a joint when it's especially sore could contribute to joint damage, so it's best to ease up for a while," says physical therapist Richard Kassler, supervisor at New York University Hospital for Joint Diseases.

If you have moderate to severe joint pain during exercise: Stop immediately. "Most people with arthritis can work through mild pain safely. But if you're experiencing a lot of pain while you exercise, even if you're not doing a particularly joint-taxing workout, it may be a sign that you have inflammation in the joint, or even joint damage that requires treatment," says Kassler.

If you consistently have joint pain (not muscle pain) after exercise: Switch to a workout that puts less pressure on your joints. "If you need an elaborate brace or have to pop ibuprofen constantly, it's a pretty good sign that your activity is too hard on your joints. Swimming, water aerobics and biking are all good options for people with joint pain.

If you occasionally have moderate to severe joint pain the day after you work out: Cut back on the intensity of your workout. Take a day off, then doing a shorter, less strenuous workout. If your pain still doesn't let up, switch to a less intense form of exercise, such as water aerobics.

What Exactly Is OCCUPATIONAL THERAPY?

April is Occupational Therapy Month! But what IS Occupational Therapy (OT)? In simple terms, OT teaches you how to adapt. If your ability to perform your everyday responsibilities is ever impacted due to an illness or injury, occupational therapy can help. Those everyday responsibilities may have included going to work in earlier years, but now it may include attending exercise classes, venturing out on the walking trails, or participating in social events like the Lunch Bunch. OT is a branch of skilled therapy that helps people regain independence in all areas of their lives, and helps with barriers that impact a person's emotional, social, and/or physical needs. So, even if you're retired, occupational therapy can still be beneficial for you!

OTs use their knowledge of the structure and function of the human body and the effects of illness and injury to increase your involvement in daily activities. OTs teach individuals how to manage stress and fatigue and prevent re-injury. They are also the experts in home safety and fall prevention and can advise on environmental modifications or improvements.

During therapy sessions, OTs will also work with the wellness and activities department to determine the best programs after your therapy is completed. This may include specific exercise classes and events, personal training, home exercise programs, or a combination of these services. Therapy partners with other departments to ensure you are engaging in the most appropriate and effective exercises and programming possible. For example, if you were receiving occupational therapy for trouble with grip strength, after being discharged, your therapist may recommend you start attending Pinecone Painters or Hobby Pines Group to continue to challenge and focus on exercising your hand and grip strength.

Brittany Austin, National Director of Health and Wellness
Functional Pathways

Eric Walker,
Rehab
Director

Eric Walker is the Director of Rehab for Functional Pathways, and he is also an Occupational Therapist. He was asked why he chose this field. "When thinking about what attracted me to the field of occupational therapy, I must relate it to my values and my Christianity. I believe we are called to make this world a better place every day with our actions and our attitudes. Three ways that we accomplish this is through love, empathy, and quality. Being an occupational therapist, I have the privilege of displaying all three of these traits daily. It begins with creating an atmosphere of love for every individual that I encounter and every individual that I have the privilege to lead. It continues with showing every client/patient empathy for their situations as if they were my own family. It is finalized with displaying the highest quality possible with my interventions and care. When I learned that I would be able to exhibit these traits daily, I knew this was a career that I wanted to be in for a while. To sum up my feelings for occupational therapy and with healthcare in general, I'm reminded of this quote. 'People will forget what you said, people will forget what you did, but people will never forget how you made them feel.' I hope to embody that quote every single day."

Resident Spotlight: JOE & GENEVA JACKSON

A LIFE FULL OF LOVE

A beautiful fourteen-year-old girl with brown hair and lovely blue eyes enrolls in high school and meets a seventeen year old handsome young man who is President of the junior high school class. They fall in love and elope as soon as he graduates, and she has completed her sophomore year in high school.

Today, that couple, Geneva and Joe Jackson are still deeply in love and will celebrate their sixty-seventh wedding anniversary in May. When asked what attracted them to each other, Geneva said, “I just liked the way he looked.” Joe said, “It was her beautiful eyes.” This is their story:

Geneva Gilliland and Joe Jackson were both born to farming families and lived in neighboring counties of West Tennessee. Geneva was born in 1939 in a community called “Frog Jump” in Crockett County, the last of five girls. “I was supposed to be a boy and I had already been named ‘John Wayne’. I think my father was so disappointed he wanted to pinch my head off,” says Geneva. Geneva laughs when she says this and relates that she had a very happy childhood and a loving family. She was given the opportunity to study piano, played piano at church and for a quartet that sang every Saturday morning on WTRV in Ripley, Tennessee.

Joe was born in 1936 in the “Nankipoo” community, Lauderdale County, completing a family of four boys and one girl. They would later move to Halls, Tennessee when Joe’s father bought a combined grocery store and service station. Geneva and Joe’s families were members of the Methodist Church. It was at a church gathering that they actually first saw each other. Both would attend high school in Halls, Tennessee; Joe became President of his senior class and their romance blossomed.

Geneva 1957

It was 1955, at the end of the school year, when Geneva and Joe decided to elope. With two friends accompanying them, they traveled to Holly Springs, Mississippi and were married in the study of a Methodist minister. The next day, they traveled by train to Flint, Michigan. Joe’s parents had moved there previously, and Geneva and Joe made their home with them for one year. During that time, Geneva completed requirements for a high school diploma.

Returning to Memphis in 1957, Geneva worked as a nursing assistant in the OB-GYN area of Baptist Hospital. She completed a laboratory course and was employed in an OB/GYN physician’s office for six years. When their first son Tim was born, Geneva became a stay-at-home mom welcoming son Robin five years later.

Joe was first employed by Purity Products, a candy wholesale company. He completed a William R. Moore and Dale Carnegie course, then decided to start his own business, Jackson Vending Company. Geneva managed the office and counted what she called “dirty money” in the literal sense! After ten years, the business was sold and Joe bought a Western Auto store in Trenton, Tennessee. During the six years there, the area suffered a tremendous flood when several area dams broke. According to Geneva, “It was an awful time as property and lives were lost. Business and interest rates were bad, and we decided to move back to Memphis.”

Returning to Memphis, Joe again began a vending company, Spartain Automatic, which he managed for twelve years before selling. Joe’s last job was in Public Relations for Car Wash USA, a business started by their son Tim.

Following retirement, the Jackson’s took two cruises and enjoyed their family life. Both played golf and were active in church. Joe also played baseball while Geneva loved singing in groups, cooking, and antiquing.

According to Geneva, “In 2009, Joe and I started looking for a place that was like home. We looked at three other places and didn’t like any of them” Laughingly, she adds, “We had known Nancy Pence a long time, even before she wed George! Knowing Nancy and others who lived here and working with Pat Mills in Marketing—this was our ticket to buy in.”

In 2016, Joe was diagnosed with prostate cancer. After eight weeks of radiation, he was cured. However, the need to make a change resulted in the decision to move to Kirby Pines in July, 2017.

Geneva assists with the memorials held at Kirby Pines, cares for Joe and plans to sing with the Entertainers Chorus. When asked what she likes best about Kirby Pines, Geneva responded, “I like everything (except COVID)! I especially like being near all of our church friends from Christ United Methodist Church who live here. I love the atmosphere and the fact that we are all brothers and sisters in our Lord.” Their two sons live close by, and the four grandchildren and seven great grandchildren make for frequent happy family time.

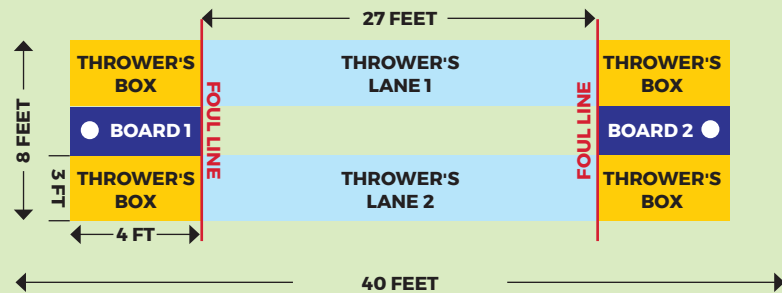

Joe and Geneva Jackson are a unique couple. To know them is to love them and they seem to love everyone. Geneva has an infectious laugh which is easily identifiable. Joe entertains us by mimicking Chinese and telling tall tales. Both Geneva and Joe hope they will be together for a long time, in love, even into eternity.

Don't Miss Our First Kirby Pines Cornhole Tournament!

Cornhole (also known regionally as bags, sack toss, or bean bag toss) is a lawn game in which players take turns throwing 16 ounce fabric bean bags at a raised platform (board) with a hole in the far end. A bag in the hole scores 3 points, while one on the board scores 1 point. Play continues until a team or player reaches or exceeds the score of 21.

Cornhole matches are broken down into innings, or frames of play. During each frame, every player throws four bags, alternating teams between each throw. A player must deliver the bag from either the left or right pitcher's box, and remain in that designated pitchers box for the duration of the game.

Cornhole can be played as singles or doubles. In doubles play, four players split into two teams. One member from each team pitches from one board and the other members pitch from the other. The first side of players alternate pitching bags until both players have thrown all four of their bags, then the players pitching from the opposing cornhole board continue to alternate in the same manner until all four of their bags are delivered and the inning or frame is completed. In singles play, two players play against each other. Delivery is handled in the same manner as doubles play. Both contestants pitch from the same cornhole board and alternate their pitches until all of their bags have been pitched, completing the inning or frame.

In order to score, the bags must either be tossed into the hole or land on the board. A bag that falls through the hole is worth three points. The bag can be tossed directly into the hole, slide into the hole, or be knocked into the hole by another bag. A bag that lands on the board and is still on the board at the end of the inning is worth one point. If a bag touches the ground and comes to rest on the board, it is removed from the board prior to continuation of play and not worth any points (commonly referred to as a "dirt bag"). Scoring is done by cancellation

(e.g., if Team A scores 12 points in the frame and Team B scores 10 points in the frame, Team A is awarded 2 points). Play continues until a player or team reaches or exceeds 21 points.

A cornhole match is played until the first player or team reaches 21 points at the completion of an inning. The winning team does not need to win by two or more points.

CORNHOLE TOURNAMENT Friday, April 22 | 2:00 pm | Grounds

You may sign up in the Resident Program's Department. Sign up in teams of two, or someone can be paired with you. We plan to have a few practice / training sessions before the tournament, so look for details to come and try something new! If you don't want to participate, at least come cheer on your friends!

REFLECTIONS

KISS AN ARTIST TODAY

I'm intrigued by bumper stickers. I sometimes get dangerously close to a car in order to see what is being proclaimed on the bumper sticker.

A recent sticker got my immediate attention, "Kiss an artist today." That's easy for me. My wife and my daughter are artists.

But the thought is expansive. I began to reflect. I remembered a story John Powell told about two priests who experienced a rich and rewarding friendship. They struggled together through the wilderness of long seminary training and worked together in a community ministry.

Then one of the two friends was hit by a car and killed in front of their residence. The other knelt at the side of his old friend, gently cradled the brother's head on his arm, and before all the people who had gathered blurted out, "Don't die! You can't die! I never told you I loved you."

It could happen to any one of us, but it need not. Before this day ends, do two things. One, even if you have to call them on the phone or write them a note, tell a person you have not told recently that you love them. Two, for a person you are always telling you love, do something that will validate your words.

Drive carefully, but pay attention to those bumper stickers. Just today I read this one: Don't believe everything you think.

The story takes place during WWII years when times were hard and families were struggling to survive in London. The one bright spot for many became story time at the neighborhood bookshop. While reading this powerfully written book you may be flooded with childhood memories of that weekly trip to the corner book store, the cozy library, or the stop of the bookmobile in your neighborhood. Join us at 9:30 am in the PAC. Bring a friend or new neighbor. All are welcome.

Apr 28: Orpheum: Mean Girls

Cady Heron may have grown up on the African Safari, but nothing prepared her for the wild and vicious ways of her strange new home: suburban Illinois. We will meet in the lobby at 6:00 pm and depart at 6:15 pm.

Apr 29: The Poetry Group: Love Isn't In the Dictionary

Love isn't in the Dictionary will be presented on April 29 at 6:30 pm in the PAC. The program will advance the idea that love is big, so splendid, so beautiful, that to understand it requires more than a dictionary definition.
